Debra Pierson, President of Pierson Computing Connection, Inc. wins “Women of Influence” award from Central Penn Business Journal

Debra Pierson, President of Pierson Computing Connection, Inc. has been selected as a “Women of Influence” award winner by the Central Penn Business Journal for her outstanding leadership, integrity and accomplishments. She will be honored at the Central Penn Business Journal’s Power of Women event to be held on Monday, May 10, 2010 at the Harrisburg Hilton Hotel.

The “Women of Influence” awards, created in 2010, are an effort to recognize women leaders who are influential in their companies, industries and communities.

A certified PMI Project Management Professional, Deb Pierson excels at technical support and project management services to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, first at IBM and now at PCCi, which she founded in 1993. As President and CEO, Deb oversees business development, business operations, and project operations, as well as establishes relationships with key business partners.

Since founding Pierson Consulting Company, Inc. (PCCi), now Pierson Computing Connection, Inc., 17 years ago, Deb Pierson has been translating challenges and adversity into business opportunities, propelling her sole proprietorship into an information technology powerhouse 40 staff strong and doing business in 12 states.
